Opportunities

The Indian footwear and leather industry is export-oriented and the government is taking initiatives to increase the leather and footwear export. The government has also announced INR 26,000 million (USD 364 million) incentive package for the leather and footwear industry. This will help players operating in the organized sector better deal with pricing pressure, along with employing 300,000 people. Under the National Skill Certification & Monetary Reward Scheme, around 60,358 youth have been trained for various jobs in the leather and footwear industry since July 2015. Beside this, due to Corona crisis industry is hopeful to reduce its labour cost. Now these days, Indian government take initiative to promote make in India programme, which become very helpful for Indian leather industry.

Threats

Nearly 85% of the Indian footwear industry comprises of unorganized players. These players sell their products at unimaginably low prices and have benefits such as lower sales tax, lower overhead cost, lower labor cost and absence of research and development (R&D) expenses. This will intensify competition as organized players will pass the price benefits to the consumers, while unorganized players try to enter the organized space. Beside this, Chinese goods and non-leather footwear products is a potential threat to our business and Company is working forward thwarting the said threat.
